

Three connections, three parks

The project builds on and links to various polarities, which make Bad Kötzing long term.

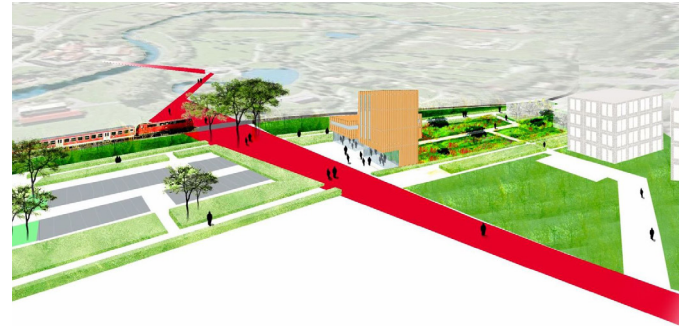

Landscaping forms the superposition of three spaces: the river along the white rain, the park south of the town centre and the city of gardens as transitions between park and city.

Three transitions to link previously separate areas: the web as a striking linear bridging that passage as a generous connection, and the bridge as an extension of the spa park.

Complementary programs compact the building accompanied by urban gardens: a youth hostel near the bridge along the railway station, the station building as part of the passage at the southern entrance and the recreational facility at the new bridge opposite the fortified church.

General concept

View of the main entrance to the Kurpark

Section of the main entrance

Site plan

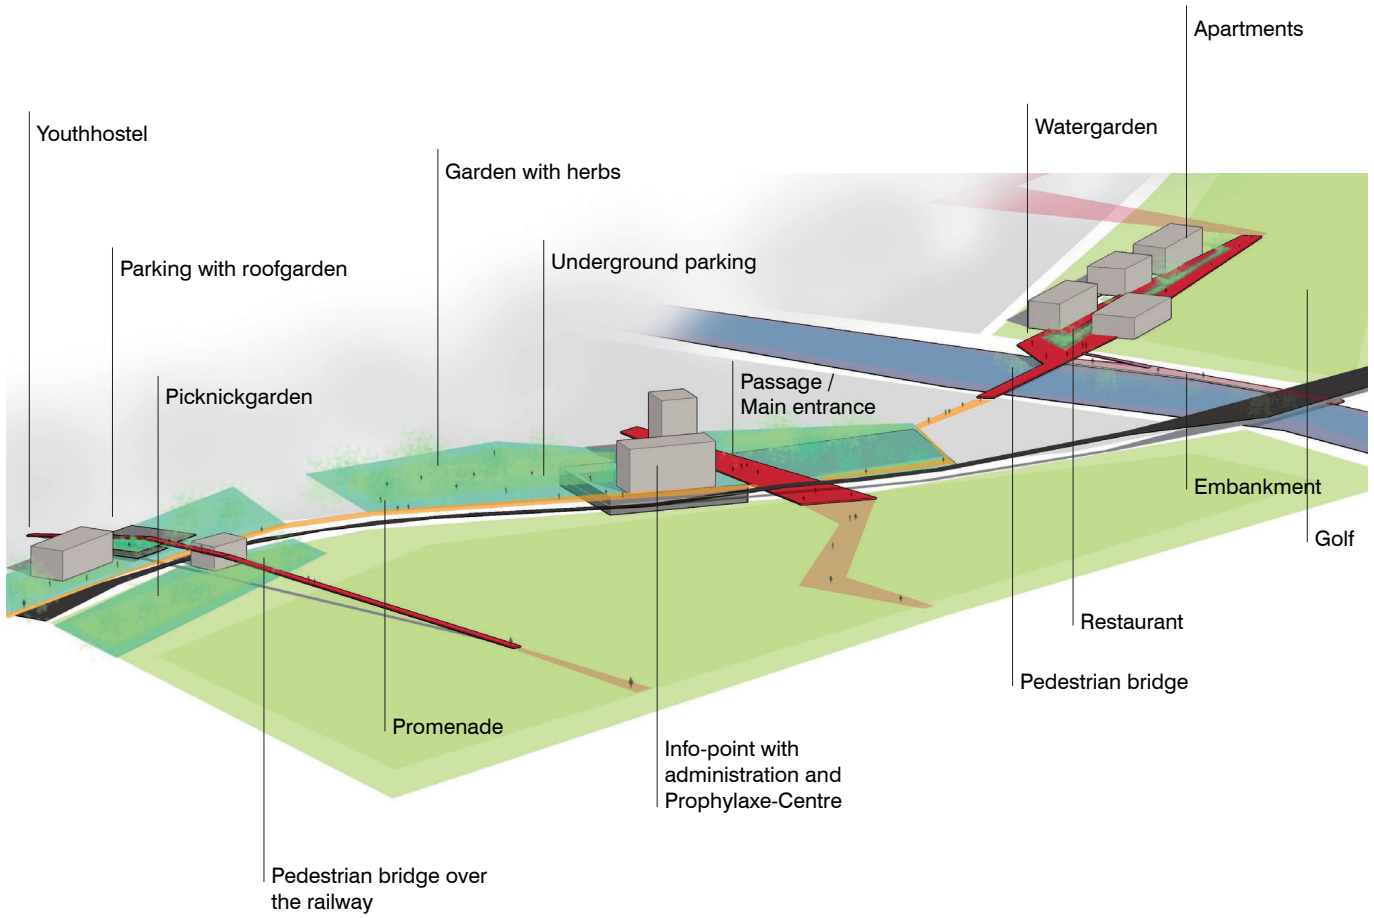

Competition Urban study
 Surface: 21ha Planning fees BT: -
 Planning time: 1 month Completion: 2010
 Client: City of Bad Kötzing
 Herrenstrasse 5, 93444 Bad Kötzing
 Location: Bad Kötzing
 Programme: Connecting city centre and spa garden
 Mission: Densification and urban links

CITY CENTRE BAD KÖTZTING

Connecting city centre and spa gardens - Bad Kötzing 2010

Rethink (representative) with MTA, landscape architects

Connecting the historic centre with the park

The project develops different connections and polarities, which will shape the City of Bad Kötzing in the long term.